TEXT: Wade, C. & Tavis, C. (1998) Psychology (6th edition)

COURSE OBJECTIVES

The purpose of the course is to introduce you to the field of psychology. A goal of the class is to emphasize the development of critical thinking skills and to prepare you to be a cautious and analytical consumer of information that proclaims to be scientific or based on research.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

There are 4 regularly scheduled exams. These assignments are bound by the Oxford College Honor Code (Honor Code). Your signature on a paper or test submitted for credit indicates that you have neither given nor received unauthorized information on the work, nor have condoned the giving or receiving of unauthorized information by others. See the Honor Code (<http://www.emory.edu/OXFORD/CampusLife/honor.html>) for further information.

There will be 100 points on each of the four exams. The test items will be taken primarily from class material, but you can expect some test questions on reading material, films, or any class activity. If you feel that the answer you chose for a test question is better than the correct answer, submit you case in WRITING to me (after a 24 hour "cool down" period). You may only contest test questions until the next exams. You may not contest questions from Test 4. Make up exams (all essay) will be allowed ONLY for officially excused absences when notice has been provided to me in advance of the exam.

Tests
Test I (chapters 1-4)	1/16/2001 9/10/00	100 points
Test II (chapters 5-8)	10/19/00 5/21	100 points
Test III (chapters 13-17)	11/10/00 April	100 points
Test IV (chapters 9-12) during finals	2	100 points

GRADING

The final grade will be based your four exams (400 points) for a total of 400 points. A letter grade will be assigned to the TOTAL points accumulated during the semester

A more detailed syllabus including a class calendar, and review sheets for each exam will be available at www.mygradebook.com.
