If you think that you are having problems or are, in some way, confused, please come in and see me. Even if you are not having problems, you are more than welcome to stop by anyway. A course like this is just that: A path charted through an intellectual region of much greater range. It is pleasant at times just to sit back and discuss the landscape.

Course Objectives

A Foundations in Cultural Anthropology and Linguistics course provides a detailed introduction to how human cultures work. Such a course examines how technology, social organization, and cosmology work together to provide a human population with a viable behavioral adaptation.

This particular class serves as one of the two foundation courses required of the Emory University Anthropology major. When completed, you should have a mastery of the basics of cultural Anthropology such that work in more advanced -- and focused -- cultural Anthropology classes will be comparatively easy. The goal here is, in part, to give you a sound training that will last you through the remainder of your Anthropology course work while also enabling you to better understand how and why human cultures work the way they do.

Texts

Nanda, Serena, and Richard L. Warms. 2002. Cultural Anthropology. Seventh edition. Wadsworth/Thomson Learning, Belmont, CA.

Barley, Nigel. 1983. The Innocent Anthropologist: Notes from a Mud Hut. Penguin Books, London.

Uchendu, Victor C. 1965. The Igbo of Southeast Nigeria. Originally Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich, Fort Worth; now Thomson Custom Publishing.

Course Requirements: Tests

Three tests must be taken to receive full credit for the class. Each test will focus on its particular segment of the course. These tests will be given on 17 February, on 28 March, and during Oxford's absolutely last scheduled final-exam period on Wednesday 7 May from 1400 - 1700 (the College asks that we turn out the lights for the summer when we leave).

Course Grading

Grading for the course will use the +/- system discussed on p.83, Oxford College of Emory University 2002-2003 Catalog. The table below gives the anticipated grading scale. Final authority for interpretations and grading rests with the instructor.

Anticipated Test Scores and Grade Equivalents	Level of Work Quality and Command of the Information
A = 100 - 87	Outstanding and superior work for a student in a top-tier national university
A- = 86 - 83
B+ = 82 - 78	Above-average work for a student in a top-tier national university
B = 77 - 73
B- = 72 - 70
C+ = 69 - 67	Average work, that is, work that would be expected of any student in a top-tier national university
C = 66 - 63
C- = 62 - 60
D+ = 59 - 58	Below-average work for which credit for knowing some of the material still should be given, even though it is not quite as solid as might have been hoped
D = 57 - 50
F [=N] = < 50	Credit for knowing the material cannot be given based upon evidenced work

Attendance

Regular class attendance and participation will be considered in determining the final grade. Regular attendance -- meaning five or fewer unexcused absences -- might be used to boost border-line grades by a third (e.g., from a B+ to an A-).
