SYLLABUS: PHIL_OX 100 INTRODUCTION TO PHILOSOPHY

MWF 9:35 - 10:25 am Humanities Hall 206

Instructor: Dr. John Kress

Office: Language Hall 106

Office Phone: 48313

Email: john.kress@emory.edu

Office Hours: M W 2:00 - 3:00 pm or by appointment. If you want to talk about philosophy, feel free to stop by my office and see if I'm around, or catch me around campus.

Course Description: The term "philosophy" comes from the Greek philosophia meaning "love of wisdom," and has for 2500 years been the name of the highest form of intellectual endeavor in the West. In this class, we will read words by some of the great philosophers from three periods in the history of philosophy, beginning at the origin of philosophy among the ancient Greeks, with Plato and Aristotle, turning to the early modern philosophy, represented by Descartes and Hume, and ending with late-modern or "postmodern" thought, in Nietzsche and Heidegger. We will see how the Western quest for wisdom results in a rough consensus on what the basic philosophical questions and issues are while at the same time leading to serious disagreements between philosophers on the answers to these questions.

Course Objectives:

1. To gain a preliminary understanding of what philosophy is.
2. To gain experience recognizing and understanding philosophical arguments.
3. To gain experience in making philosophical arguments.
4. To get a sense of the basic shape of the history of philosophy.

Required Texts: It is important to get the right translation.

Four Texts on Socrates, trans. Thomas G. West & Grace Starry West, Cornell, ISBN 0801485746

Heidegger, Basic Writings, trans. David Farrell Krell, HarperCollins, ISBN 0060637633

Course Assignments and Requirements:

Reading: Most of the texts we will be reading are fairly difficult. Be sure to allow yourself enough time to do your reading. 15 pages of Aristotle is equal to 30 pages of many other writers! By the same token, don't expect to completely understand a difficult philosophical text on a first reading. Take your time, read slowly and carefully, think about (and talk about) the reading, and when you can, re-read.

Position Cards: Every class, you are to turn in a 3 x 5 note card which should have your name, the name of the author and the reading, and a short reflection on the day's reading. This reflection can be an argument, a question or questions, something the reading made you think about, etc. The purpose of this is for you to think a little in writing (one side of a note card) about each reading. I recommend you write your position card at the same time you do your reading (as opposed to right before class). I will often use the position cards to take attendance. Please try to write legibly!

Attendance: Regular class attendance is both required and important. Much of our best learning is done in class. Students should attend every class, if possible. Your overall class grade will be adjusted according to the number of unexcused absences you have, as follows: 0 = +4, 1 = +2, 2 = +1, 3 = 0, 4 = -2, 5 = -4, 6 = -7, 7 = -11, 8 = -16, etc. Excused absences will be given for 1. medical or family emergencies, 2. religious observances, and 3. events authorized by the College. For an absence to be excused, you must provide appropriate documentation, in advance in cases of 2. and 3. above.

Class Participation: All students are expected to come to class having done the reading carefully and prepared to listen and take part in class discussion. You will find you get a lot more out of class if you have completed the reading. While it is not required that everyone be equally vocal in class, everyone is expected to participate in discussion to some extent. If you feel you have nothing to say, bring up the issue you already discussed on your position card!

Reflection Paper (1): 600 words. A reflection paper is a short paper in which you bring your own thinking to bear on an assigned topic without use of any outside material. I want you to simply and seriously reflect on the question that I ask and to think about your answer to it as carefully as you can.

Exposition/Argument Papers (3): 900-1200 words (include word count on title page). An exposition/argument paper is a paper in which the primary purpose is to demonstrate your understanding of a philosophical text. You will do this by presenting a critical exposition of the philosopher's views and arguments along with your own critical response. The word "critical" here does not mean a negative or hostile response, but a careful, thoughtful, examined response ("critical", from the Greek krinein, "to examine", "to distinguish"). As a result of your critical examination, you may of course disagree with a philosopher, but you don't have to. We will have one paper on each of the periods of philosophy we are covering, i.e. one on Plato or Aristotle, one on Descartes or Hume, and one on Nietzsche or Heidegger.

Exams (2): We will have two exams, a midterm and a final. They will cover the first half of the course and the second, respectively (i.e. the final is not comprehensive). Both will have the same format and will be a combination of multiple answer questions (similar to multiple choice, except that one or more of the answers a-d can be correct, or all, or none) and short essay questions.

Re-writes and Paper Conferences: You may re-write any of the exposition/argument papers. Before re-writing, you must meet with me to go over the paper (paper conferences usually take around 15-20 minutes). Re-writes are due no later than two weeks after the due date of the original paper. When submitting a re-write, you must submit the original paper with my comments along with the new draft.

Grading and Evaluation:

Scale: Grading will be according to the standard scale of A, B, C, D & F with + and -.

Breakdown:	Position Cards	10%
	Class Participation	10%
	Reflection Paper	10%
	1st Paper	14%
	2nd Paper	14%
	3rd Paper	14%
	Midterm exam	14%
	Final exam	14%

Late Papers: I will accept late papers, but the paper grade will be reduced by one letter grade per class day the paper is late.

Honor Code: As with all classes at Oxford, the Student Honor Code will be taken very seriously in this class. You can find an online copy of the Code here:
