Course Description:

This course provides students with an introduction to Black Studies. In the first section of the course we consider the history of Black Studies in the U.S. using the integration and development of Black Studies here at the University of Texas, Austin as a case study. We then turn to considerations of the historical construction of Africa, the Black Diaspora, and the idea of Blackness. Building on this foundation the course provides students with the analytical tools to critically explore canonical Black Studies literature, themes, and theories. This section of the course interrogates race, gender, class, sexuality, and their intersections. The second section of the course focuses on Black cultures, power, and politics. It utilizes the analytical tools provided by the course to forge an understanding of Black gendered cultural forms. The third section of the course focuses in on the expression and use of Black Studies and the ethical questions raised by applying this perspective to everyday concerns in critical areas of social inequity.

The course meets online during scheduled class times and includes a live-streaming video component. Students are encouraged to visit <http://www.laits.utexas.edu/tower/tech.html> to test their computer and network connection and learn about the course structure.

Description of Online Format:

This is the Synchronous Massive Online Course (SMOC) version of the AFR303 course. Unlike almost all other courses offered at the University of Texas, you will be viewing this class online (from the comfort of your own home, library, or coffee joint) rather than in-person (except as required.) Though delivered as a live stream through Canvas, this course takes place at the official times described in the course schedule: 1:00 pm – 2:30pm Mondays and Wednesdays. You are required to attend class by logging into the course site before 1pm on Monday and Wednesday to watch the live, real-time video stream of our lectures and participate in class activities. It is very important that you treat logging into the course website the way you would treat attending a traditional course held in a classroom; attendance is required. You will have the opportunity to pose questions online in real-time just as if you were raising your hand in class. The lectures will have 6 -8 students participating directly with Dr. Gordon during the live class and another 18-20-person studio audience. These students will be chosen through an application process on a first come basis.

About the Live Online Class format:

Canvas class website: To get to everything associated with the class, go to: <https://utexas.instructure.com/courses/1211839>. You can enter directly at this URL or through Canvas (<https://utexas.instructure.com/>). To log into Canvas and the class website, you will need your UTEID and password. Once you reach the class website, you can navigate your way to other areas.

Some of the most important features include:

1. Homepage – The homepage will have links to the Course Syllabus, the Video Stream where you watch class every day, a help section, and several other important links you'll use through the course.
2. Video Stream – The Video Stream is the page on which you will find the live lecture for the course. The Video Stream will also display the outline for the current lecture and links to other participation activities.
3. Modules – The Modules page includes links to the Assignments, Readings, Lecture video archives and other course documents.

Most of your activity on Canvas will take place in the Video Stream and Modules tabs.

Tech Requirements:

Required internet-enabled device: All students are required to have access to an internet-enabled laptop or desktop computer. Tablets and smartphones are not supported. Your computer should have enough battery life to last an entire class period and meet the following requirements:

- Computer laptop or desktop
- RAM: at least 2GB
- Modern and updated operating system (MacOS or Windows)
- Browsers: Safari, Firefox, or Chrome (highly recommended)
- 5Mbps internet connection speed (check here: <http://beta.speedtest.net/>)

You should confirm that your computer is able to stream the video lectures by visiting the test stream page at <https://www.laits.utexas.edu/tower/tech.html>.

There are multiple computer labs on campus for your use if you do not have a personal computer or laptop. (You can find a listing of these labs here: <https://it.utexas.edu/services/teaching-classroom-technology-labs>). If you do not have an internet-enabled device, some inexpensive ones are available at local stores or on the internet, some for as little as $100. We also encourage you to watch the lectures with your classmates so if you do not have a personal computer or laptop you might consider pairing with a classmate who does.

Bandwidth limitations: Because the streaming video is bandwidth-intensive, you should not access YouTube, Skype, Gmail video chat or other online video system, or any other program that is bandwidth-demanding during class. During the class session, you should be watching the lecture, taking written notes, and nothing else! (I recognize the temptation to multi-task. If you find yourself frequently distracted online, I recommend you try browser-based solutions like StayFocused or LeechBlock that prevent you from accessing certain tempting websites during class hours).

Course communication:

During Class:

The Class Chat feature allows you to communicate with your TA and other students during the class.

The Ask the Professor a Question feature on the Video Stream is the forum where students should ask questions for clarification or further elaboration.

We expect that you will treat online discussions as though you are having a civil, respectful discussion with your fellow classmates in the same classroom. Please refrain from using profanity or any euphemisms for profanity. Please do not bait other commenters or personally attack them. Please do not use sarcasm in a way that can be misinterpreted negatively. And please do not make the same point over and over again. Also, please ensure that your discussion in the class chat remain relevant to the topic at hand. In short, please just respect the right of your colleagues to ask questions and discuss their opinions about the subject matter of our course on the discussion board and refrain from unnecessarily being a distraction to others. Violators of these discussion rules will simply be shut out of the online discussion board and will be asked to see the professor in person.

Outside of Class:

The TAs and professor will often post Announcements in Canvas. Click on the “Settings” link in the upper-right corner of your Canvas page, to adjust your email address and notification preferences. This will allow you to receive email updates whenever course Announcements are made, or when assignments and grades are posted.

If you have a specific, personal or grade-related question, please email your TA or visit them during office hours.

Please do not use the Inbox feature within Canvas for course-related email.

Even though this is an online course, you are encouraged to communicate with the professors and TA. Come to our posted online office hours, or send an email to set up an appointment if none of the weekly office hours fit your schedule.

Honor system for quizzes and writing assignments:

By taking this class, you agree to abide by the University of Texas regulations concerning cheating. During the quizzes you cannot receive help from others or discuss your writing assignments with other students. If you observe others cheating, you are honor bound to contact the TAs or instructors.

Information and data security:

All quizzes and online interactions in Canvas will be saved and stored. All information will be kept for educational and general academic research. Any research or data sharing with other researchers will involve de-identifying the data, including the removal of names, UTEIDs, email addresses, or other information. To further ensure that your information is secure, please do not include identifying information in your online interactions with others. Remember that in online interactions, the instructors and TAs will have access to all information. Please communicate in a respectful manner.

Reporting technical problems:

If you experience a technical problem during class, your first course of action should always be to immediately report the issue to tech support via the tech chat accessible through the Home Page or the Video Stream. Please note that you must report any technical issue before the end of the lecture during which the problem occurs. The professor and teaching assistants will not address the ramifications that your technical problems might have on your grade if tech support does not have a record of your problem. If you experience a technical problem outside of class, please follow the link to contact tech support in Canvas.

Lecture Attendance – We Will Take Attendance!!

The course will meet two times per week for lectures by the professor. The lectures will present empirical material, and interpretive perspectives not available elsewhere. They will be complemented by the readings. Students are required to attend all lectures online. We will take your attendance three to four times during each lecture!!! If students must miss lecture due to sickness or other unchangeable obligations, they must inform the TA's as soon as possible. You are required to send explanations for absences to the TA's email (onlineAFR303ta@austin.utexas.edu) in advance when possible, and no later than 24 hours after lecture. If a satisfactory explanation does not arrive at the attendance TA's email within 24 hours of lecture, the student will be graded down for an unexcused absence. You must attend lectures! If you have read this far in the syllabus email a picture of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr to onlineafr303ta@austin.utexas.edu.

shortly after 12:45 p.m. so we can talk to you about studio rules. You will also get a chance to talk with the instructors, TA, and the other students who will be part of this.
