Course Policies for THEA #101

Course Description:

Theater #101 is a theoretical and practical initiation to theatre as a collaborative art. This course serves as an introduction to the major movements in theater and to contemporary theatrical practice. Through readings, exercises, video presentations, live theatre events and conversations with working artists, students will gain both critical and experiential perspectives on this dynamic art form.

Course Objectives for Students:

- To understand the principles and practices of theatre as a collaborative art.
- To develop vocabulary and critical skills allowing the enhanced participation as an audience member or theatre practitioner.
- To learn about the range of possible theater experiences and the varied objectives of theatre artists.
- To develop an appreciation of the jobs of various artists and technicians who contribute to theatrical production.
- To express an emotional response for your own design concept of a play.
- To provide an open forum to express your personal interests in theatre and related fields.
- To develop an awareness of the many different kinds of theatrical experiences of the past and present and their relationship to the larger society.

- To understand the role of theatre in today's multitude of entertainment choices.
- To enhance the students own communicative skills both written and oral.

Goals or Outcomes

These will be discussed as we progress through the course. For instance, this class will not prepare you for stage or screen! I do not sing or dance and suffer from stage fright. But, I feel that I have an appreciation of theatre and can make contributions in other ways. You too will have to find your path and we will all work together to map out our journey.

Required Text: Theatre – The Lively Art - Eighth Edition by Edwin Wilson and Alvin Goldfarb ISBN: 978-0-07-351420-8

Required Study Works:

- Script reading - scripts will be posted on BlackBoard
- Attend one performance of The Winslow Boy presented in the Tarbutton Theatre – February 27, 28 and March 1.
- TWO PERFORMANCES OF YOUR CHOICE – I will inform you of Oxford Studies events that meet the requirement. Attending a performance of the Vagina Monologues and the Oxford One Acts presented on campus will count. If you wish to attend a performance off campus, please let me approve the play before you attend. Performances of Theater Emory on the Atlanta Campus are recommended and also priced for students.

The following plays and musicals are required for class discussions to enhance your reading material from your text. Performances viewed may be partial clips or the full performance viewed on consecutive days of class. If you miss a class some plays are on reserve in the Woodruff Media Library or available on loan from the instructor.

- School for Scandal by Richard Brinsley Sheridan
- The Skin of Our Teeth by Thornton Wilder
- Ah, Wilderness by Eugene O'Neill
- Our Town By Thornton Wilder
- The Man Who Came to Dinner by George Kaufman and Moss Hart
- What Where, Come and Go, Footfalls, and Act Without Words 1 by Samuel Beckett
- Candid Operetta by Leonard Bernstein and Voltaire
- Sunday in the Park with George by Stephen Sondheim and James Lapine
- Oklahoma (filmed live – London production) by Richard Rogers and Oscar Hammerstein
- Company by Stephen Sondheim
- Rent Filmed Live on Broadway by Jonathan Larson

BlackBoard

- Readings, course materials and additional assignments will be listed on the course Blackboard sight.

Course components:

- Class and text assignments:
Students are expected to prepare all assignments before class, to arrive on time with notes for discussion and to bring your textbook and copies of any other material assigned for the class with them. Class exercises, guest speakers and presentations cannot be made up. If you must miss a class, please let me know before class by email. Make up work, when possible, will be decided by the current assignments and reason for absence. Three absences will result in reduction of your grade by one letter.
- Performance reports on live performances:
You cannot study theater without seeing live performances. As part of this course you will be required to see three theater productions. One of these will be the performance of The Winslow Boy. You will need to select two other performances on or off campus. A student theater performance by one of Emory's (Atlanta or Oxford) student groups will be accepted. It is strongly recommended that you attend a professional theater event off campus if possible.

All performance reports must be turned in no later than Friday April 25.

- Final Project:
At the end of the semester the class will perform a class developed production. We will work together to create, rehearse, stage and perform the work for invited guests on the final exam day. This will be your final exam.
